Keith Vaz MP
Minister for Europe
House of Commons
LONDON

Dear Mr Vaz

European questions

What is being done within the institutions of the European Union, such as the Commission and the Council, in order to procure the worldwide ban on the development or deployment of weapons for manipulating people that the European Parliament called for in resolution A4-0005/1999 paragraph 27?

Are you in favour of such a worldwide ban?

Would you be in favour of the UK setting our European partners a good example, by eschewing the development and deployment of these "mind control" weapons unilaterally, even before the worldwide ban requested by the European Parliament had been negotiated and signed by other countries?

Would you be in favour of Britain being at the forefront of any diplomacy in Europe (or elsewhere perhaps) aimed at procuring the worldwide ban called for by the European Parliament?

Yours in Christ

John Allman
